

Gehret Pugh

- B.S. Accounting

Academic and Professional Background

Hello, my name is Gehret Pugh and I am currently a second-year Accounting Major here at the University of Nevada. This is a second degree for me, the first being in Criminal Justice (also from UNR), and prior to starting school again last year I served in the Army for just under six years. During my time in service, part of my responsibilities included doing some basic bookkeeping tasks which served as my introduction to the world of Information Systems. Through this work I was able to learn a good deal about Excel and other Microsoft Office programs as well as some of the Army's proprietary systems.

I found that I enjoyed this work and getting to see the ways that information can be measured, stored, organized and ultimately used in the decision-making process. Through this course I hope to learn more about these types of systems and their implementations in the business setting.

Personal Background

I chose to return to UNR partly because I knew credits from my previous degree could be recycled toward this one, but primarily because I really love the Reno-Tahoe area. Outside of my studies, I enjoy spending my free time skiing and when it comes to both quality and ease of access of ski areas, I don't think there's anywhere in the country that beats Reno. Thanks for reading and I look forward to learning more about IS this semester.
